M.P. ANSWERS HIS CRITICS

Defends Pamphlet Which Disturbed Liberal Club

Sir Richard Acland, M.P., addressed his critics on Tuesday at a meeting which he had convened, following the passing at the recent annual meeting of Ilfracombe Liberal Club, of a resolution "regretting that the Member for the division has not supported the Club in the manner which previous Members have, and deploring that at the present juncture he should have published his pamphlet entitled 'What Now,' which contained proposals contrary to Liberal principles, which the Club was founded to support."

Mr. T. F. Day, President of Ilfracombe Liberal Club, presided, and said how the first time he took the chair with regret.

Mr. Day described Sir Richard's proposals as revolutionary, and said this most certainly was not a time to propagate such proposals. It was not a time to engage in political controversy.

Referring to criticism of his proposals for a new social order, Sir Richard said they had got to build a better world after this war, and what made the task so formidable and discouraging was that they totally failed to build a better world after the last war. He certainly thought it wrong to express any views which made it harder to fight the war.

He considered it right, however, to keep thought on the subject of a better world alive.

If they said his views were contrary to the policy of the official Liberal Party, with that he could not argue. There was no doubt whatever about that. But he did not feel like a fish out of water altogether in saying something which was contrary to the official policy of the Liberal Party.

As to whether it was absolutely contrary to Liberal principles, they had to make up their minds what those principles were. If the safeguarding of private property and enterprise were the policy of the Liberal Party, then they had utterly failed, and there was no chance of going back. The world was not run by unrestricted private competition, but there was a system of monopoly control, and which there had been a big advance in the last 20 years.

"I believe the principles of the Liberal Party are to try and promote equality, real liberty—not merely the right to vote, but economic liberty—and decency in our national life. Those are ideals we have not yet succeeded. Now that we are asking men to go out once again after a war to end war, I think they are entitled when they come back to be offered a world in which there will be equality forthwith.

"I do not believe you will create equality as long as you hang on to the principle that mere ownership of itself entitles a man to draw an income whether he works or not."

The chairman told Sir Richard that that evening he had very much qualified his pamphlet, and asked whether he would withdraw it.

Sir Richard: I could not consider withdrawing my view.

Mr. G. H. Jones, chairman of Ilfracombe Liberal Club, said Sir Richard had put forward Communistic doctrines of confiscation of property, etc., views which were contrary to and totally opposed to Liberalism as he knew it. It was a policy which was the negation of liberty and freedom which the Liberal Party always stood for.

Mr. H. Bissett, a vice-president of the Club, whilst observing he did not agree with all Sir Richard's views, urged they should take no steps that would endanger his Parliamentary career, and it was agreed that no resolution should be passed.

The meeting lasted nearly three and half hours.

Mr. E. W. Oke (chairman of the branch) presided over a well-attended monthly meeting of the Holsworthy Branches of the British Legion at the Memorial Hall, Holsworthy, when various nominations and recommendations were made for the forthcoming annual Area Conference to be held at Exeter.

It was reported that the total receipts from the sale of poppies in the district, amounting to just over £92, was a record, in addition to which £7 was received from other sources.

The branch consted £1 1s to the Women's Institute Fund for providing Christmas presents for all Northernhay-square, Exeter, Forces. It was also decided that the usual grant of £1 1s be made to the Holsworthy Church Carnival.

The annual branch dinner will be held early in January, and a small sub-committee was appointed to make final arrangements.

DEVON VICTIMS OF RAWALPINDI EPIC

Exmouth and Bideford Men Feared Lost

BUDE AND EXETER SURVIVORS

SEVERAL WESTCOUNTRY MEN ARE FEARED TO HAVE LOST THEIR LIVES WHEN THE ARMED CRUISER RAWALPINDI WAS SUNK IN NORTHERN WATERS BY THE GERMAN POCKET BATTLESHIP, DEUTCHSLAND, AFTER A THRILLING BATTLE. BUDE AND EXETER MEN WERE AMONG THE SURVIVORS.

EXETER MAN AMONG THE MISSING.

Among those reported missing in the loss of H.M.S. Rawalpindi is Mr Cyril Austin Snow, of 18, Albion-street, St. Thomas, Exeter, whose wife has received a telegram from the Admiralty informing her of the fact.

Mr. Snow, who is a naval pensioner, has been called up three times in the past twelve months. He joined the Royal Navy in 1912, went right through the last war, and left the Service in 1926. He was appointed to the Rawalpindi nine weeks ago.

TRANSFERRED FROM COURAGEOUS.

Mr. F. J. Russell, Exeter survivor of the Rawalpindi, was in three ships which were blown up during the last war, and was transferred from H.M.S. Courageous a few days before she was sunk last September. A reservist with 26 years' service, Mr. Russell, who is married with three children, was called up on the outbreak of war. He is a member of the Exeter White Ensign Club.

EXMOUTH VICTIMS.

Sad news reached Exmouth on Monday of two well-known local men who were on the ill-fated British armed merchant cruiser, Rawalpindi.

One of them (Mr. E. J. Skinner, of 19, New North-road, Exmouth, who was a very popular figure in the town among sportsmen, is reported dead. He was 54 years of age, and leaves a widow and three young children, with whom the deepest sympathy will be felt. Mr. Skinner retired as petty officer of the Navy some 12 years ago. He had led an active naval career, and in his early days was on the Plantone survey ship. For ten years he was with the destroyer, H.M.S. Success, and during the last war was in the battle of Jutland. When he left the Navy Mr. Skinner went to Canada, and was engaged in training sea cadets for another four years. He returned to his native home at Exmouth, and settled down on his pension, but was called up in August last, and, after proceeding to Devonport, was transferred to the ship which has now met her doom. The widow received the sad intelligence of his death from the Admiralty.

Ted Skinner, as he was familiarly known, was keenly interested in the Exmouth Rugby Football Club, and was a member of the Exmouth Conservative Club, where he often contributed to the socials and concerts held there.

The other man, reported as "missing" as a result of the disaster, is 23-year-old Charles John Sedgemore, son of Mrs. A. J. Ferris, of 11, Market-street, Exmouth. He leaves a widow, residing at Exeter, and a son, aged two years nine months. Mr. Sedgemore, who was on the R.N.R., was called up for service some time before war was declared, and was staying with his mother at Exmouth on leave two weeks ago from Scotland. Only to-day his brother, a police constable at Modbury, Wm. Sedgemore, rang up his mother to know if any news had been received. Mr. Sedgemore was a well-known fisherman at Exmouth.

FORMER IDE LICENSEE'S SON MISSING.

Leading Seaman Harry Pope, aged 50, son of the late Mr. Robert Pope, of the Hunters Inn, Ide, and brother of Mrs. Huxham, of 36, Mill street, Bideford, and of Mrs. Burnett, Kingsley Hotel, Northam, is believed to have lost his life in the Rawalpindi.

Leading Seaman Pope, who was unmarried, had been on pension after 22 years' service in the Navy, when he was recalled and subsequently posted to the Rawalpindi.

His had been living at Bideford at the Union Inn, Mill-street, which is kept by his brother-in law, Mr. H. Huxham, for about eleven years. Entering the Navy when a boy of 15, his 22 years' service included the last war, in the course of which at Dogger Bank and Heligoland engagements. He was in the Lion, Earl Beatty's flagship, and was twice torpedoed.

Five of Mr. Pope's brothers served in the armed forces during the last war and all survived, though two were badly wounded.

BUDE MAN AMONG SURVIVORS.

News was received in Bude late on Sunday that Chief Petty Officer Arthur Chandler, who, prior to being called up on the outbreak of war, was steward at the Bude Conservative Club, is one of the 17 survivors of the Rawalpindi.

Mrs. Chandler was busily engaged with her children at their home, Bencoolen, when she received a telegram from the Admiralty informing her of her husband's safety.

Mr. Chandler is a native of Bedford) and his wife of Bude.

BRIXHAM MAN MISSING IN THE RAWALPINDI.

Sub-Lieut. Harry W. Raymont, R.N.R., elder son of Mrs. W. E. Raymont and the late Mr. W. E. Raymont, of Greenfield, Higher Head-road, Brixham, is among the missing in the Rawalpindi. He had served two years in the R.N.R. and on August 15th reported for naval training and was attached to the gunnery section. His cousin, Lieut. Frederick K. Manley, R.N.R., lost his life during the early days of the war in H.M. submarine Oxley.

14 COUNCIL MEMBERS WALK OUT

No Quorum: Business Suspended

There was an unusual scene at Tuesday night's public meeting of Barnstaple Town Council, when fourteen Aldermen and Councillors left the meeting, causing the Mayor (Mr. Charles F. Dart) to suspend business, as there was not a quorum.

The exodus took place when the Town Clerk (Mr. F. J. Broad) announced a notice of motion by Mr. F. A. Dunning in favour of increasing Old-Age Pensions.

The Mayor said the procedure adopted was quite unknown to him.

Mr. Dunning said he took it not only as a direct snub and insult to himself but to the old-age pensioners of the country. He should call a public meeting and address the ratepayers on the matter.

Later the members of the Council who had left the meeting handed a statement to the "W.T." representative, stating they had every sympathy with the old-age pensioners and trusted that legislation would soon make it possible to increase the present allowance. They held that it was a national question, however, a point of view which was enforced by the Mayor in Committee when an appeal was made to Mr. Dunning to withdraw the motion.

LADY ANNE WALPOLE MARRIED

The wedding took place at St. Andrew's Church, Wickmere, Norfolk, on Saturday, between Lady Anne Walpole, of Rosemoor, Torrington, and Major Roger Palmer. Lady Walpole, a daughter of the Countess of Orford, of Torrington, is well known in North Devon. She has formerly taken part in horse-racing events in many villages in the Torrington and Bideford districts.

The Bishop of Norwich officiated, and was assisted by the Rev. J. Pallister, Rector of Wickmere. Mr. John Fletcher Palmer (brother of the bridegroom) performed the duties of best man. The bride, who was given away by her cousin, Lord Walpole, was attired in a parchment coloured dress of ring velvet with a small train. Her wreath was of orange blossom, covered by a parchment tulle veil falling to the waist. She carried a muff of the same material as the dress, on which was arranged a spray of small orchids and lilies of the valley. Her ornaments were pearls and a regimental badge of the Duke of Lancaster's Own Yeomanry set in rubies and diamonds, a present from the bridegroom. Major Palmer was in uniform.

The two bridesmaids, Misses Gwendolen Molesworth and Juliet Ridley, were ring velvet dresses of deep gold, and sashes at the back of light copper, lined with leaf green. Their wreaths were shaded velvet oak leaves and their tulle veils, worn off the face, were of copper. They carried velvet muffs of copper lined with leaf green on which were arranged sprays of yellow roses tipped with red roten leaves and chrysanthemums. The whole effect resembled the foliage of autumn.

A reception was held at Wolterton Park, lent by Lord and Lady Walpole.
